The Modern Naturalist. One of the most hopeful develop ments of our time is the change that has come over the name of naturalisa The word was often used to describe a man who was interested in stuffed birds; the collector who gave the fullest play to his most selfish instincts, and was chiefly concerned to have body else had. We now understand by the term a man whose weapon is not the gun, but the camera, who does not want to have a dead bird on his mantelpiece, but to watch a live bird imens but in free and beautiful and happy life of a living creature.

Hearing Affected by Sound.

Manchester Guardian,

It is reported that certain experiments have shown that a vibration of sound having an amplitude of less than one-twelve-millionth of a centimeter could still affect the sage of hearing. Such a vibration greated be so short that it would have to be enlarged 100 times before the most powerful microscope could render it visible, supposing that it were capable of being seen at all. Old persons, it is said, do not hear high notes which are audible to young persons, and there is reason to believe that bables hear notes that are inaudible to their elders.

Tin Long in Use. Tin was mined by the early Sax ons. History informs us that the tin mines in Cornwall were in operation over 2,000 years ago, and known to the ancient Phoenicians. Pliny, the Roman historian who lived in the First century A. D., refers to the wealth of the Cornish tin mines and the high quality of the metal brought from Cornwall to Rome The metal is known to have been taken to Italy through Gaul, immediately after the conquest of Britain by the Romans.

Art's Real Purpose.

Art is the expression of the nation's highest thought. The men and women who give their lives to it constitute the vanguard of civilization. They are the true physicians, healing with beauty the perplexity and pain of ly Bluminating the darkness that is tomorrow; they are the trall-blazers. winning new worlds; they are the interpreters of the pent-up idealism of the luarticulate millions.—Herman Hagedorn.

Burial Among the Kaffirs. When death overtakes the Kaffir, he is buried in a sitting position in a circular hole, or in an empty anthill, The chief is honored above the rest of his tribe by reposing in the cattle inclosure. Beside the body are laid the spoon, mut, pillow, etc., of the deceased, and if he is buried on the outside of the kraal inclosure, then a fence of stones is placed around the grave to prevent its being disturbed by wild beasts or wizards.

At 300,000 pounds pressure, water will turn to fee, though a thermometer may show it is at 180 degrees Fahrenhelt. The first effect of pressure on ice is to lower the freezing point, but if the force is increased a strange collapse comes at 2,000 atmospheres. The force that holds the molecules apart is overcome, and the ice shrinks 18 per cent in volume. It will then sink in water instead of floating.

Whale's Hopeless Fight.

There are many instances recorded of the giant sperm whale being taken and devoured by some colossal sea creature. In 1875 the officers and crew of the barque Pauline, whilst sailing in the Indian ocean, noticed three sperm whales upon the surface of the water. "Suddenly an enormous serpent-looking creature appeared amongst them. It seized the largest of the whales in its sinuous colls and a furious battle ensued. One of the ribs of the unfortunate whale was distinetly heard to crack. The fight lasted about a quarter of an hour, when the monster disappeared below the waves

Greatest Mother Summons Her Children

An allegorical concept of the Red Cross as a peace-time ideal is employed by the American Red Cross in a new and striking poster for its Annual Red Cross Roll Call. Spread out before the heroic size figure is the outline of the United States with a Red Cross superimposed upon it while around its borders are sketched scenes depicting the chief activities of the Red Cross today—service to disabled veterans of the World War, disaster relief and promotion of the public health. The poster is the work of Lawrence Wilbur, a New York artist and will be displayed throughout the country during the enrollment of the Red Cross membership for 1923.
